Recall 101

Ten percent of all registered voters must sign a recall petition in order to demand a recall election. 46,556 valid signatures are needed. The Department of Elections must put on an election between 88 and 120 days after the signatures are verified as sufficient. The recall election on Tuesday June 5, 2001 will have two questions on the ballot:

No. 1: Shall Willie Brown Jr. be recalled (removed) from the office of Mayor? Yes or No! No. 2: Who shall replace him? [List of Mayoral Candidates]

Mayor Brown may not run for Mayor in his recall election. If 50 percent of voters plus 1, vote to recall Brown, he is removed from office. The candidate with the largest number of votes becomes the Mayor. If Ammiano, Jordan, Riley, and other candidates deliver their supporters to the polls, Brown will be recalled. If a young, articulate, intelligent, and moderate candidate who has never run for Mayor puts his hat in the ring, he may be elected mayor. If this popular candidate stepped forward, would the soft money interests support Brown or the popular candidate? State law does not allow for a runoff if no candidate gets more than 50 percent of the vote. If there were a runoff, Brown could not run even as a write-in candidate. If Brown is recall on June 5, 2001, will he ever be elected to public office again? Can a small group of thoughtful committed San Francisco citizens removed our very powerful Mayor from office? Has Brown's ship of state hit an iceberg and can anyone stop the flow of water to prevent it from sinking to the bottom of the cold political ocean?

Some say Diane beat a recall drive, why could not Willie. Feinstein was a rising star with a high approval rating at the beginning of her political career. Brown is a falling star with his lowest approval rating at the end of his political career. Rumor has it that his approval rating is at 21 percent. If this is true, who will our next Mayor be?
